

Chedi Muscat Hotel joins forces with NHI

The iconic Chedi Muscat Hotel has joined forces with Oman's leading vocational training provider for the hospitality sector - National Hospitality Institute - (NHI) who have recently celebrated their 25th year in operation.

Chedi Muscat has always had a great reputation for employing Omanis in its ranks and offering various development opportunities to upskill them and retain their interest in the industry.

This policy is in complete alignment with the Oman Vision 2040 which is aiming for sustainable employment in the field of tourism and hospitality.

The hospitality industry has had a very challenging time through the COVID-19 pandemic and many hotels are just getting back to normal business.

It is therefore fantastic to see Chedi Muscat not only develop their existing staff to higher levels of skill but also taking in new fresh Omanis into the company.

Thomas Guss, GM of Chedi Muscat, said, "Our industry is about people and without the right people we cannot provide the service to our guests. It is therefore essential that we focus on this asset to ensure we are at the top. Once again we are working in mutual collaboration with National Hospitality Institute who have the experience and knowledge to carry out this vital work for us."
